

BLAINE FRITCH IS ACQUITTED

Jury Finds he is Not Guilty of Bootlegging After Being Out Twenty-Five Minutes.

REVERSES MAYOR'S DECISION

Evidence in Case Practically Same as in First Trial—State Has Two Witnesses.

Blaine Fritch, charged with the unlawful possession of intoxicating liquor, was acquitted by a jury in the circuit court this afternoon. It took the jury just twenty-five minutes to find Fritch not guilty. The verdict was signed by John Spencer, the foreman. The case occupied the entire day in court and went to the jury at two o'clock.

The bootlegging charge against Fritch was preferred by Chief of Police McAllister. He obtained a quantity of liquor in Connersville and was nabbed here as he was getting off the car. The case tried today was taken to the circuit court on an appeal from the mayor's court. Fritch was found guilty by Mayor Black and fined $50 and costs and sentenced to serve ninety days in jail. The verdict of not guilty reverses this decision.

Very little trouble was had in securing a jury and the first twelve men placed in the jury box were accepted by both sides. The state introduced only two witnesses and it did not take very long to present its side of the case. Chief McAllister and policeman Wolter were the two witnesses. McAllister was the first to testify. The evidence all the way through was practically the same as in the first trial of Fritch in the mayor's court.

The police told of arresting Fritch on the night of April 12 as he was leaving an I & C. at the C. H. & D. crossing, and of finding in his possession four and one-half quarts of whiskey and thirty-six pint bottles of beer. McAllister testified that the defendant came in on the 9 o'clock car and that he had two suit cases. One of these was given to J. T. Barnett as Fritch went to leave the car. Policeman Wolter told practically the same story as McAllister. It was brought out that Fritch was on the opposite side of the car from the window with the blind drawn. All the "wet" goods were found in the two suit cases with the exception of two pint bottles which were found on his person when searched at the jail. The state based its case on the statute for having unlawful possession of intoxicating liquor.

Following the introduction of the state's evidence, John Kiplinger, one of the attorneys for Fritch moved that the court instruct the jury to return a verdict for the defendant on the grounds of insufficient evidence, but the motion was overruled and the case was again taken up. Blaine Fritch, the defendant was the first witness. Fritch testified that his mother gave him $2.50 with which to purchase the beer; William (Bee) Murphy, $1.25 for a quart of whiskey; Frank Jones, $1 for a quart of whiskey; Charles Lake and Russell Florence, fifty cents each for a pint of whiskey. It was shown that the money was given Fritch before he left for Connersville in the afternoon of the day he was arrested.

On cross-examination Fritch stated that he had been arrested for selling a pint of liquor to Tom Worthington in 1911 but the case was thrown out of the circuit court after he had been convicted by May-

HURT WHILE ON A VISIT

Mrs. H. P. Overleese of Milroy Suffers Painful Injuries.

Word has been received here that Mrs. H. P. Overleese, who is visiting her sister in Colorado, while out with a party sightseeing, fell over a bluff, painfully bruising and cutting her arms and shoulders and receiving a sprained back, says the Milroy Press. The party were walking over the mountains when in some manner Mrs. Overleese lost her balance and fell over the bluff. When picked up she was unconscious and limp as a rag. The report said that her fingers were mashed and bruised very bad and that the sprained back was making it unable for her to walk. While the injury is very painful it is not considered serious.

MAIL IS COUNTED AND CLASSIFIED

City Carriers Comply With an Order
From Department This Week,
Asking For Data.

RURAL CARRIERS COUNTING

The city mail carriers at the Rushville postoffice began yesterday to count and classify all the mail that they will handle for a week. This is in accordance with an order received last week by Postmaster Charles Frazee from Daniel C. Roper, first assistant postmaster-general at Washington, D. C. The count includes all mail received and collected.

During the latter part of May, Postmaster Frazee received a letter from the fourth assistant postmaster general, ordering the rural carriers from the local office to count, classify, weigh and keep a record of the amount of postage on all the articles the order to take effect Monday, June 2, and last to June 30, inclusive. These orders are given out nearly every year at this time to all the postmasters of the United States.

ARE ENCOURAGED BY THE REPORTS

Officials of Civic Improvement Association Believe Crowd at Pitchin Tomorrow Will be Large.

CONFLICT WILL NOT DETRACT

Officers of the Rushville Civic Improvement and Social Service association have received encouraging reports concerning the pitch-in supper which will be held at the city park tomorrow afternoon and evening for the purpose of cleaning up the park and arousing a community interest in it.

It is to be a Rushville affair. Everyone is invited. Several crowds of people have been organized to attend, and they will eat together and enjoy a little party of their own.

It has been pointed out that the closing day exercises of the Catholic schools will be held tomorrow evening, but since the exercises do not begin until eight o'clock, they will not detract any from the pitch-in and will not prevent anyone from attending both.

CITY CHANGES PAVING PLANS

Modifies Resolution For First and Perkins Street and Will Improve
Only Around Court House.

IS NO OBJECTION TO THIS

Orders Sidewalks and Gutter in Jackson Street When No Remonstrators Appear.

The city council met in special session last night to hear remonstrances on the proposed improvement of South Jackson street. No remonstrators appeared and the improvement was ordered. The street will be improved with cement sidewalks, curb and gutters. The meeting was called for this purpose but several other things came before the council.

About the most important thing done was the modifying of the resolution calling for brick paving around the court house. At the last meeting of the council J. W. Tompkins petitioned the council to pave First street from the east side of Main street to the alley east of Perkins street. The council went farther than this and ordered Perkins street from Second to the mill race included.

The council understood that J. M. Gwinn would be opposed to the improvement as planned by the council and in order to insure that it went through the modification was made. The resolution now calls for the paving of Perkins street, south to First, and First street, west to Main. This means that the streets around the court house that are not paved will come under the improvement. By changing the plans it is understood that Mr. Gwinn will not remonstrate and the improvement will no doubt go through.

The council approved the assessment roll of the George street improvement as prepared by the city engineer. Some one pulled a bone when the sidewalks in West Ninth street were constructed and at present there is a drop of four to five inches in the walk. As a result water stands there making it very bad. The people there have asked the council to repair the damage. The street commissioner was ordered to raise the walk to the proper grade.

Several months ago street lights were ordered placed in the Stewart & Tompkins addition. The lights have never been installed. Councilman Newhouse asked the reason of the delay. Councilman Orne stated that the superintendent of the water and light plant had been so busy fixing breaks in the mains and working at other things that he had never gotten to the light improvement, but that it would be done as soon as possible.

FUNERAL TODAY.

The funeral services of Perry Boyce, age sixty-five years, who died at the home of his son in Indianapolis Sunday, and who formerly lived in Rushville, was held this afternoon at two o'clock and burial was made in Crown Hill cemetery. Mr. Boyce moved here from Shelbyville a few years ago and later went to Indianapolis. He was a member of the Owl's lodge at Shelbyville.

CHANGED FOR SUMMER.

The meetings of the Knights of the Holy Grail will be held only the first and third Mondays during June, July and August. No meeting was held last night.

Lon Stewart will leave this evening for Grand Rapids, Michigan on business.

MILROY MEN IN AUTO ACCIDENT

L. L. Ferree Probably Worst Hurt of Three When Machine Turns Over at Greensburg Outskirts.

MISHAP CAN'T BE EXPLAINED

Bert Newbold Escapes With Few Bruises and Will Foster, Who Drove Car, is Not Hurt.

An accident at the outskirts of Greensburg yesterday afternoon just before supper came near resulting fatally for L. L. Ferree, living five miles south of here, and Bert Newbold of Milroy, when Will Foster's automobile, in which they were riding with Foster, turned over.

Even the men who were in the accident can't explain how it happened. It was all so sudden and quick that they can't comprehend just what caused the mishap unless a tire blew out. They were driving at a medium rate.

Mr. Ferree was the worst hurt of the three. One of his hands is seriously hurt and he has a large wound on his face. He was resting very easily today and the physician predicted that he would soon recover. There was some apprehension concerning his condition last night. His body was fearfully bruised, but it is not believed that he was injured internally.

That none of the occupants suffered a broken bone is considered remarkable by men who witnessed the upset. It seemed that from the position in which Bert Newbold was found that he would have been hurt the worst, but he was not injured as badly as Mr. Ferree. When men reached his side, Mr. Newbold was entangled in the fence and the automobile which had hurled into the fence. He has a few bruises on his body today to show for the mishap.

Mr. Ferree and Mr. Foster were thrown out into the road when the machine left the pike for the ditch. Mr. Foster escaped with only a few bruises and was able to get up and help his more unfortunate companions at once.

Mr. Foster was preparing to pass an automobile driven by Lee Hume of Milroy when the accident happened. Whether the tire blew out or not some inexplicable thing caused the machine to suddenly swerve to one side and upset. The automobile would most likely have turned turtle had it not been for the top. That kept the machine from turning completely over and probably saved Bert Newbold from serious injury.

The machine was badly damaged. When Mr. Foster began to take an inventory of the broken auto, he found the lamps and fenders in the road and the rest of the machine lying over against the fence.

Lee Hume went to the aid of the three men and hauled them home in his automobile. Mr. Ferree and Mr. Newbold went to Greensburg yesterday morning on the train to look after a contracting job and had started home in Foster's machine.

STEALS RUBBER TIRES.

Sometime Saturday night a thief forced an entrance through a window into the Charles Brown blacksmith shop at Clarksburg and made off with three rubber tires of a set to a buggy. The sets sell for about $20 and what the thief took will therefore be of a value of about $15. Nothing else in the shop was disturbed as far as the owner can ascertain, the robber being bent only on appropriating something to possibly make easier riding in his buggy or carriage.

FIGHTERS WERE ARRESTED

Will Explain Trouble at Ball Game to Squire Kratzer.

Fred Hatfield and Charles Sorrell will explain to Squire Kratzer tonight at seven-thirty o'clock all about the fight that took place Sunday afternoon at the ball game. They were arrested for assault and battery. During the game Sunday afternoon a fight occurred and the police believe they have the fighters. The cause of the trouble is not known. The fight caused considerable commotion at the game and Sorrell and one other man were taken from the grounds. Chief McAllister preferred the charges.

CONNERSVILLE HAS REAL BENEFACCTOR

E. V. Hawkins Donates Three-Acre Tract of Land For Public Playgrounds in the City.

BENEFITS TO BE DERIVED

Connersville has developed a philanthropist—this particular one being a benefactor of children. E. V. Hawkins, who is president of the city school board has purchased and donated to the school city of Connersville, a three-acre tract of land to be used as a public playground, the title to be vested in the school city and the premises to be forever dedicated to the purpose suggested—a public playground for the children of the city of Connersville.

"Connersville is to be congratulated," says an editorial comment in the Columbus Republican which is good for consumption here. Rich men can do nothing that will bring to themselves greater honor than to invest an infinitesimal (to them) portion of their wealth for the benefit of the present and future generations of youth. A permanent public playground is one thing that will remain a monument for all time to come to the generosity and noble impulses of a man or woman, or an association of one or both, and a Y. M. C. A. building is another.

CHANNEY DAMAGE CASE IS RESUMED

Defendants, Drs. H. H. Elliott and J.
T. Paxton, Testify When Hearing is Started Again Monday.

OTHER WITNESSES FROM HERE

Trial of the Channey damage case was resumed in circuit court Monday and eleven of the witnesses for the defendants, Drs. Elliott and Paxton, had been heard before the noon hour, says the Shelbyville Democrat. They were Albert McConnell, William Wilson, Alfred L. Shaw, Jr., Frank Johnson, Charles Alger, Clifford Barnes, M. F. Shank, Walter Looney, Charles Mauzy, W. B. Morris and Thomas Bishop. Most of them were men and boys familiar with the life of Harold Channey, son of Carlton Channey, the plaintiff. The suit is for damages of $5,000 for malpractice in connection with treatment given the boy for a fractured hip suffered in a fall at school. The case was on trial the greater part of last week and is not yet near an end.

CROP OUTLOOK IS VERY BRIGHT

"Horn of Plenty" Will be Lavish in its Output in the Late October Days of 1913.

COLD WILL NOT HURT MUCH

Wheat Prospects Are Not as Good as First Anticipated But Average Yield is Expected.

There is a fine outlook for the crops of 1913 as shown by present conditions and that the "horn of plenty" will be lavish in its output in the late October days is now expected by every farmer or person who has given attention to growing conditions during the few weeks just passed.

The severe weather for this season of the year is not expected to do much damage to the growing crops unless it gets colder than it has been. Of course, this temperature is not good for the crops, but it will not stunt them. No frost was reported last night but the weather indications for today do not hold out any relief from the present pressure area which is causing the slump in the mercury.

While many unfavorable circumstances had to be encountered in the early spring owing to rains, causing a delay in the plowing for corn, this was finally overcome and at present the outlook is splendid for a good corn crop.

The weather has been very favorably also for wheat and while this crop may not be quite so large as first was anticipated, yet the prospect is good for an average yield. In some parts of the country complaints are being made that wheat did not stool properly and that insects are causing some damage, but generally speaking, the wheat is faring better than it usually does from the latter.

Owing to the early rains and continued wet weather many of the clover fields are well-filled with

Fine Points in Advertising

A reader of THE DAILY REPUBLICAN the other day was planning a fortnight's fishing trip in the Adirondacks, and in running through the advertising pages chanced upon an advertisement of a sporting goods house.

Being entranced by the "out-o'-door" atmosphere and the sportsmanlike tone of the announcement he was soon deeply engrossed. Toward the end, to his astonishment, he found complete detailed information about the very lake on which he expected to spend his vacation.

He learned all about the fish and their habits, and the kind of tackle to use and a number of other useful and informing points all as if written for his especial benefit by a true lover of the sport.

Crystallized in this one advertisement was all of the information, and more, that he needed to complete the arrangements for his trip.

This is only one instance of the splendid help that present day advertising offers to the readers of THE DAILY REPUBLICAN.

NOT A TWINGE OF RHEUMATISM SINCE TAKING RHEUMA

"I suffered from Rheumatism for six years; tried different doctors, with no relief. I saw your advertisement and decided to try RHEUMA. I have taken three bottles and am entirely free from the disease. I was so bad I could not sleep nights; now I sleep well and my kidneys work perfectly."—P. W. Miller, Catawissa, Pa.

"For 14 months I was so badly afflicted with Rheumatism that much of the time I was obliged to use a cane. I used one bottle of RHEUMA and THE CANE IS IN THE CORNER NOW. No one could be happier to be rid of the pain, swollen knees and badly swollen ankles. I certainly believe there is no remedy for the disease like RHEUMA."—Mrs. Daniel S. Knox, Severance, N. Y., Aug. 8, 1912.

F. B. Johnson & Co. guarantee RHEUMA to cure Rheumatism, Gout, Lumbago, Sciatica, Arthritis, Chronic Neuralgia and Kidney disease or money back—and only 50 cents a bottle.

AN EXCITING SNAIL RACE.

Passengers on Ocean Liner Manage "Thrilling" Contest.

Passengers on the steamer France on one of its recent trips from Havre to New York were treated to an innovation which amused them greatly.

A snail race was suggested by a woman passenger at dinner as a means of entertainment. A half dozen snails of the edible variety, some three inches long, were obtained from the ship's steward and placed upon a sheet of white paper on the promenade deck. A head of lettuce was set as a goal and incidentally to encourage the racers. The distance over the track was eighteen inches.

When the first "heat" was run off the winning snail covered the course in a trifle over three hours. Many of the passengers who made bets on the contest saw the start and returned several hours later to witness the finish.

EARLHAM PLANS A "HOMECOMING"

Big Reunion of Students Set for June 24.

A GREAT WEEK ANTICIPATED

Invitations Have Been Sent to All Who Ever Attended the Old College at Richmond to Come Back For the Commencement This Year, and Preparations Are Being Made For the Entertainment of Thousands.

Richmond, Ind., June 10.—"Earlham homecoming" is to be an added feature to commencement week at the college this year, and it is anticipated that 10,000 visitors will respond to invitations sent out. June 24 is the day set for homecoming festivities.

Mrs. Allen D. Hole, 615 National road, is receiving the registrations of former students who will attend. All the former students are expected to register. At 9 o'clock the morning of June 24 the present students and former students will assemble by groups, representing the periods when they attended Earlham, and will form a procession. Each group is to have a special song or old class yell, suggesting former college days.

In the afternoon speeches will be made and a baseball game will be played between a team of former students and the 1913 team. Reunions will take place after the game, and a lunch will be served at 6 o'clock on the campus. The senior class play, VanDyke's "The House of Rimmon," will be presented in the evening.

FATAL MOTORCYCLE RACE

Tragedy Attends Speed Contest Held at Marion.

Marion, Ind., June 10.—John Vancamp of Muncie is in the city hospital suffering from a crushed breast and concussion of the brain received in an accident during the motorcycle races held here, and surgeons hold out no hope for his recovery. Claude Harvey of Marion also received a broken left leg and left arm. Harvey was leading, but in making the turn his machine skidded, throwing the rider, and Vancamp, closely following, crashed into the wreck and was in turn hit by E. G. Baker of Indianapolis. Baker escaped with a few minor bruises.

Girl Comes Out of Long Trance.

Ladoga, Ind., June 10.—Miss Merille Zimmerman, the high school girl who had been in a trance since last Tuesday morning, awoke yesterday so weak that she could not leave her bed. "Where am I?" were her first words spoken to her mother. Miss Zimmerman had shown few signs of life during the long week following the attack which, the parents believe, was caused by overwork in connection with graduation.

GUNBOAT GOES TO THE AID OF BLAZING LINER

The Olinda Making Desperate Race for Port.

Norfolk, Va., June 10.—The Munson line steamer Olinda, with the American gunboat Nashville acting as convoy, is racing for Charleston, S. C., with fire raging in her hold and her crew almost exhausted from fighting the flames.

The Olinda, when 170 miles south of Frying Pan shoals, sent out wireless calls for assistance. The Nashville was within a few miles of the burning vessel and hurried to her assistance. Several other steamers came up later. The Nashville sent a fire-fighting crew to the Olinda and helped to subdue the flames in the steamer's hold.

The Olinda, only able to make nine miles an hour, is proceeding to Charleston, and if the flames get beyond control the Nashville will take off the passengers and crew.

The Olinda carried nine passengers, a crew of fifty-four and a full cargo. She left New York last Friday for Cuba. The steamer was more than 200 miles from any port when the fire was discovered, and she decided to try to reach the nearest one, Charleston. She is not expected to reach that port until tomorrow morning.

HARRY H. FLAGLER IS INCLINED MORE TO ART THAN TO FINANCE

Speculation as to What Part He Will Play in Handling Big Fortune.

Showed No Interest in Railroad and Hotel Plans of His Late Father.

MUCH interest has been expressed by men of financial affairs as to the part Harry Harkness Flagler will play in the disposition of the great fortune of his father, Henry M. Flagler, estimated to be more than $100,000,000.

Harry Harkness Flagler is forty-two years old. He has been little known in connection with the work of his father either in the Standard Oil company or in the great development plans carried on in Florida.

It is said by men who have had close acquaintance with the affairs of Mr. Flagler that the son and the father had been estranged for a long period and that for ten years they had not spoken until the day before Mr. Flagler died, when the younger Mr. Flagler arrived at Palm Beach from Europe in time to see his father alive.

Harry Harkness Flagler, though a man of acknowledged business capacity, has never engaged in business. He has kept singularly aloof from the affairs of the Standard Oil company. He never showed interest in the Florida railroad and hotel plans of his father, so far as is known.

At the age of twenty-two, with a large career in business before him if he chose, it was regarded as doubtful that he would ever go into business. His temperament is artistic and his nature is one of excessive delicacy. As a child, it was said, he preferred to play with girls rather than with boys.

Young Mr. Flagler is a Columbia university man of the class of 1894. He is a son of Mr. Flagler's first wife, who was a member of the Standard Oil family of Harkness. He married Miss Anna Lamont in 1893. His town house is at 32 Park avenue, New York city. He lives modestly, and though a member of the Union League and Calumet clubs of that city is rarely seen in club life.

An Immense Fortune.

Henry M. Flagler was one of the world's richest men, and his name has been linked from the beginning with some of the greatest American enterprises in financing and engineering among them the organization and development of the Standard Oil company and the building of the overseas railroad from the mainland of Florida to the island city of Key West.

Mr. Flagler was eighty-three years old, and it was not until the last two years of his life that his great genius was dimmed to an appreciable extent.

Like other Americans whose fortune must be reckoned by scores of millions, Mr. Flagler started on his business life young, very poor and thrifty. He gradually withdrew from the manifold business interests which the years had brought him to a retirement amid surroundings indescribably sumptuous. It may be said that he lived two lives. It has been said of him that after he had reached the age of fifty-five and had won enormous wealth in Standard Oil he stopped and began life over again, with new interests, new activities, new environment. If he did not discover in his later years the fountain of eternal youth he found at least rejuvenation and found it where it was sought by Ponce de Leon—in Florida.

Henry M. Flagler was the man who made Florida the luxurious winter resort that it is today. He more than developed it. He created the "American Riviera." He built the chain of hotels which are unsurpassed in the world. He strung the narrow peninsula commonwealth with railroad tracks, and his crowning achievement was the overseas railway to Key West.

Early Struggles.

Flagler was fourteen years old when one spring morning he left his birthplace, a little cluster of houses on a crossroads near Canandaigua, N. Y., and walked nine miles to Medina with all his earthly possessions in a small carpetbag. His father was a Presbyterian minister earning $400 a year.

The youth decided that it would be well for him to earn his own living, for $400 barely supported his mother and sister. At Medina he boarded a freight boat on the Erie canal and went to Buffalo. There were packets, to be sure, but packets were not for a boy who had so little in his pockets.

At Buffalo he took a vessel for Sandusky, O. On Lake Erie they ran into a storm, and it was a miserable young man who crawled off the boat at the Ohio town and went looking for a job.

He found one in Republic, O. It was high time, too, for the only money the boy had was a five franc piece, a coin that was accepted in that part of the country for a dollar. Mr. Flagler always kept that coin to remind him of those days. He said he was imitating the man in the Bible and his one talent.

He was paid $5 a week and his board by a storekeeper with whom he obtained work. In ten months his pay had been increased 40 per cent.

"I was contented, but not satisfied," he used to say when he talked about those times. "I have always been contented, but not satisfied. To be dissatisfied means that you are ambitious to advance to do things, not that you may be richer, but that you may be useful and take a part in the work of the world."

While the young man was selling everything from molasses to corn planters in the little store and incidentally selling brandy from a keg—one kind to the English at $4 a gallon, another kind to the Germans at $1.50 a gallon and still another kind to the Dutch for anything they had a mind to pay—another "dissatisfied" youngster was a commission merchant in Cleveland.

Mr. Flagler had saved a little money and went into the grain business in Bellevue, O. He sent a good many carloads of wheat to John D. Rockefeller, the Cleveland commission merchant.

John D. and his brother William started a small oil refinery in Cleveland on the side of a hill. They built a second in 1867, and Stephen Harkness, related to Flagler by marriage, backed him to the extent of $100,000, with which he bought a partnership in the Rockefeller concern.

Bought Up Refineries.

This was Rockefeller, Andrews & Flagler. Of the three Cleveland residents always said that Andrews had the largest endowment of natural ability, Rockefeller the most pertinacity, Flagler the most method. By and by other refineries sprang up around the three. Rockefeller, Andrews & Flagler bought them up.

They were making money and making it fast. Flagler became a resident of Cleveland, and that city began to take notice. In 1870 they closed their partnership and organized the Standard Oil company. At first it was capitalized for $1,000,000. Then when they bought out Lockhart, Frew & Co. of Pittsburgh, Warden, Frew & Co. of Philadelphia and Charles Pratt & Co. of New York the capitalization jumped to $3,500,000.

Once the Standard Oil company began to feel its strength the history of the business career of Mr. Flagler was identical with the history of Standard Oil. He was called the "second power" there. Up to June, 1908, he was vice president and director.

He was also a director of the Western Union Telegraph company, the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railway, the Minnesota Iron company, the Duluth and Iron Range railroad, the International Bank Note company, the Morton Trust company, the Peninsular and Occidental Steamship company, the Florida East Coast railway and the Jacksonville, Tampa and Key West railway.

Mr. Flagler became interested in the possibilities of the wilderness of Florida being used for fruit growing, and he decided to open up the wilderness by means of railroads. With this end in view he acquired in 1886 the Jacksonville, St. Augustine and Halifax River railroad, and two years later he bought the St. Augustine and Palatka railroad, the St. Johns and Halifax, which ran to Daytona, and a narrow gauge road.

Until 1892 he devoted his energies to improving the railroads he had, but then he began the construction of a line south from Daytona, his purpose being to open up the wilderness. That year thousands of orange trees were planted along the road, but a frost blighted them. Mr. Flagler then decided to run his road beyond the reach of frost, and in 1894 he carried it as far as Palm Beach.

Again the frost arrived. He then extended his road to Miami in 1896, and no frost reached the crops there.

Spent Many Millions.

Edwin Lefevre says this about Mr. Flagler's work in Florida:

"It is to be doubted whether more figures can give an adequate idea of the magnitude of Mr. Flagler's work. He has spent $41,000,000 in Florida—that is, his investment in incorporated enterprises amounts to that—divided roughly as follows: Eighteen million dollars in the old railroads, including the development of towns; $10,000,000 in the Key West extension, $12,000,000 in hotels and $1,000,000 in steamboat and outside enterprises.

"This sum does not include his charities, churches and divers donations, for neither he nor any one else has kept the figures. The value of the taxable property in the districts exclusively reached by the Flagler roads has increased $50,000,000 since he began.

"There are today only about 25,000 acres under cultivation for fruit and vegetables out of a total of about 3,500,000 acres now available for such cultivation."

In 1905, when the Panama canal was assured, Mr. Flagler conceived the idea of running his railroad to Key West. He sent for his engineers and told them of his plan. He told them haphazard makeshift roadbeds would not do, expense did not count, but he must have an up to date, permanent road built. And he got it.

The road is famous for its forty-six mile extension from Knight's key to Key West, opened in January, 1912, the object being to run car ferries to Havana, ninety miles distant. The road has been moderately prosperous, but is regarded in financial circles largely as a pet enterprise.

ENGLISH TOWN WILL CELEBRATE MILLENNARY.

Witham, Near London, Is a Thousand Years Old.

Witham, a little town of Essex, England, thirty-nine miles northeast from London, is to celebrate its millenary this year. It has a population of about 3,500 and is situated on the river Brain, also known as the Guith, a form indicating the origin of the name of the town. In the days of the ancient Britons it is said the place was called Guithavon.

In that part of the town called Chipping hill are earthworks thought to be the remains of fortifications ordered made by Eadward the Elder in 913, but held by some to be of British origin. Roman bricks appear in the old Church of St. Nicholas.

An old smithy there is pointed out as one where Dick Turpin stopped to have his horses shod when on one of his pilgrimages for plunder. The Spread Eagle hotel is six centuries old and has been said to be the only four gabled inn to be found in England.

Witham will recall events of 1,000 years ago, including the reconquest of England from the Danes.

MONUMENT TO A HEROINE.

Shaft Erected at Grave of "American Grace Darling."

Through the efforts of a young schoolgirl, Miss Mary Jane Dewick, a monument has been erected at Newport, R. I., over the grave of Ida Lewis, the heroine of Lime Rock light-house, better known as the Grace Darling of America.

The exploits of Ida Lewis are well known, she having saved twenty-four lives from the waters of Newport harbor. Many stories of her simple life as keeper of the light appeared in the newspapers and magazines, and after her death, in October, 1911, Miss De-wick immediately began raising subscriptions for a suitable monument.
The response was not as enthusiastic as desired, but she never gave up hope and finally succeeded. The monument is of granite and has the following inscription:

"Ida Lewis, the Grace Darling of America; keeper of Lime Rock light-house, Newport Harbor; born February 25, 1842; died October 24, 1911;
erected by her many kind friends."

STATES ACTING WITHIN RIGHTS

They Have Power to Regulate Railway Rates.

WITHIN THEIR OWN BORDERS

United States Supreme Court Has Handed Down Its Long-Awaited Decision in Minnesota Rate Case, Unanimously Holding in Favor of State and Against Federal Control of Traffic Exclusively Within States.

Washington, June 10.—The supreme court has just handed down the long awaited decision in the Minnesota rate case. The court unanimously decided in favor of the states and against federal control. The railroads thus lose their fight on the big principle involved in the case. They had hoped through this litigation to shake off most of the burdensome rates which the authorities of many states have fixed for intra-state traffic and to establish the control of the interstate commerce commission in all cases where there is a conflict between its authority and the authority of the state officials.

The effect of the decision is to sus-tain the power of the state railroad commissions and state legislators to fix 2-cent passenger or other rates on business exclusively within the states, provided always that the rates are not confiscatory.

The supreme court in this important decision holds clearly, however, that congress has the power to override state authority as regards the fixing of rates which affect interstate business whenever the national legislature shall elect to exercise such authority.

In putting this problem frankly up to congress there is apparently little hope of immediate relief for the railroads.

As to the specific effect of the decision upon the railroads immediately involved, the court holds that the rates fixed by the Minnesota state authorities in the case of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific are not confisca-tory. These reduced rates on intrastate business will therefore go into effect, the rates up to this time having been held up by an injunction granted by the lower court. The supreme court's decision on this point, however, is without prejudice and it will be possible for the railroads to reopen the case in the future if they can prove that the rates are confiscatory.

In the case of the Minnesota and St.
Louis railroad company, which was the other interstate line involved in the proceedings, the rates fixed by the Minnesota authorities are held to be confiscatory and will not therefore go into effect.

While only the single case involving the authority of the Minnesota railroad and warehouse commission was decided, more than forty cases were before the court involving generally the same principle.

A legal game of hide and seek between the government and the Adams Express company was summarily ended by the supreme court when it held that the company may be criminally prosecuted for violation of interstate commerce laws. The department of justice and the interstate commerce commission have been fighting for this ruling for years. Ohio federal courts held that because the company is a "joint stock association" and not a corporation, it could not be prosecuted itself, and that only members of the "association" who are difficult to find with subpoenas, could be held.

"It has been notorious for years that some of the great express companies have been organized as stock companies for the express reason, it seems, to evade this law," said Justice Holmes. The court declared there was "no doubt that congress intended to make express companies amenable to the law." The decision was unanimous.

Convictions of five officials of the American Naval Stores company at Savannah—the so-called turpentine trust—for criminal violation of the Sherman law were set aside by the supreme court because of an erroneous instruction of the trial judge. Officials of the department of justice, however, did not regard the decision as generally unfavorable to the criminal section of the Sherman law. They never believed that they had a strong case.

More than 1,000 organized teamsters are on strike at Buffalo for an increase in wages.

THE KING OF SPORTS ATTRACTS THOUSANDS

International Polo Match in Progress This Afternoon.

New York, June 10.—This afternoon America and England met in the first of the polo matches which will decide the destination of the Westchester cup, the possession of which marks supremacy in the polo world. For two years both countries have been looking forward to these battles and upward of half a million dollars have been expended to insure the players and ponies appearing in the playing field in condition for what is expected to be the greatest match ever played in this kind of sports. The line-up of the teams is:

America—No. 1, Lawrence Waterbury; No. 2, J. M. Waterbury; No. 3, H. P. Whitney; back, Devereaux Milburn.

England—No. 1, Captain Cheape;
No. 2, Captain A. Noel Edwards; No.
3, Captain Ritson; back, Captain Vivian Lockett.

A tremendous crowd made the journey to the grounds of the Meadow-brook club to see the acknowledged champions of the old and new worlds in the initial contest. Additions to the stands which were in use when the American team defeated England two years ago, have made it possible to care for upward of 25,000 persons, and though the lowest price for a seat is $2, the varied attractions of the game were sufficient to attract a crowd that not only occupied all the seats, but provided a big crowd along the side lines.

The contest depends on two games out of three. The recent change in the American team made necessary by the injury to Foxhall P. Keene in the final practice game of the four originally selected to defend the cup has heightened the interest.

RE-ELECT THEIR PRESIDENT

Indiana Suffragists Pay Compliment to Dr. Hannah Graham.

Indianapolis, June 10.—The Equal Suffrage Association of Indiana held its annual meeting and election of officers yesterday afternoon and, despite her objections, Dr. Hannah M. Graham was re-elected president. Dr. Graham insisted that she should not be re-elected, saying that no president should serve a third term and also that a new president might be able to bring new ideas into the work and still carry out former plans.

It was pointed out at the meeting, however, that Dr. Graham had taken a leading part in the efforts to obtain suffrage legislation and that she ought to retain the office to direct that work, and she finally consented to serve another term. In her annual address Dr.
Graham covered the work of the organization during the last year, told of the efforts to obtain suffrage legislation, of the organization of seven branch associations and of the homes furnished in the flood district. The report of the treasurer showed that all the bills of the organization had been paid and that there is a balance in hand. The next meeting of the association will be held in October.

Primaries.

The Newcastle Times, Democratic newspaper, expresses the faults of a primary in a nutshell by the following: The workings of a primary are practically this: The fellows who run the party pick out certain candidates they want nominated for the various offices. If any formidable opposition comes up against some candidate, the bosses pick out another man or two and have him enter the race, being careful to get men who will draw from the candidate not on the slate. In short, they divide the opposition to the slate candidate in many parts, thus insuring the nomination of the right man, even though he receives only one-fourth or one-fifth of the votes cast, as has often happened in Henry county.

This cannot happen in a convention of delegates selected by the voters. Any name can be presented to a convention by any delegate. It permits the selection of men who are not office-seekers but who would make splendid officials. It carries out the theory on which this government was founded. The candidate whose name goes before a convention must get more than a half of all the votes in the convention, which prevents a little clique from naming a man with a small minority vote.

A primary in theory is a nice thing but in practice it is the essence of corruption in politics, leads to ring rule and inefficient officials. The Democrats of Newcastle will stay with the convention, so that the men who are nominated will be known as the choice of the majority of the party.

No Handles.

A declaration of principles of the Republicans of the little town of Leoti, Kan., is quoted with approval by the Kansas City, Mo., Journal, and merits the approved of good Republicans everywhere. Here it is:

"We are Republicans and owe no allegiance to any man. We are not Taft men. We are not LaFollette men. We are neither standpat nor bull moose."

That is, they are "just Republicans," and it is "just Republicans" who are required at the present time.

These Leoti Republicans are members of a party which has been identified with the prosperity and progress of the nation for the past half century. They have found the principles of the party sufficient for the perpetuation of representative institutions and the happiness and well being of the nation.

Loyal to their party, believing in it as the best available instrument through which the continued progress of the country may be assured, they are of the belief that their party is superior to any man or set of men in it; that it represents the hopes and beliefs of millions of Americans rather than the ambitions and power-lust of any man coterie, and, in that spirit of loyalty and that belief, they support the party and its declared principles.

It is that spirit that will reanimate the Republican party—which is already reanimating it. The Republican party has today, as it always has had, an exalted mission, and no temporary check can serve to destroy it nor to obscure its aims.

The Senate doesn't know where it is going, but it is on the way either to a speedy vindication of itself or a row with the White House that will break another precedent.

Duluth has had a flood by which twenty families were rendered homeless. In Ohio and Indiana they would hardly be willing to call that a heavy dew.

LINKS WATSON'S NAME WITH QUIZ

Senator Poindexter Suggests Former Congressman as Witness in Lobby Investigation of Senate.

IN ARIZONA ON BUSINESS

Friends Have Not Seen Watson at Washington While Present Bill is Being Framed.

Washington dispatches are connecting the name of James E. Watson, former national representative of this city, with the lobby investigation which is taking place in the United States Senate at the behest of President Wilson. His name was first brought into the quiz when Senator Miles Poindexter of Washington state yesterday named him as one of four who might be called in the investigation.

James E. Watson is in Phoenix, Arizona, looking after business interests just at present and could not, of course, make any comment on the suggestion of Senator Poindexter.

A Washington dispatch to the Indianapolis Star says that "Washington friends of Mr. Watson have not seen him here while the present tariff bill was being framed, but they remember he was a visitor when the Payne-Aldrich bill was on its way through congress." The dispatch says in part:

Former Representative James E. Watson of Indiana will be summoned as a witness before the committee of senators that is investigating to find them out whether or not there is an "insidious" lobby, as declared by President Wilson. He was suggested today by Senator Poindexter of Washington as a witness who might enlighten and entertain the committee.

The senator from Washington state was being interrogated as to whether or not he knew anything about a lobby in Washington city or elsewhere and he suggested that one of the most objectionable type of that gentry that he knew anything about was the former senator or former representative who, after leaving Congress, returned to his haunts to operate as a member of the "third house."

Pressed to give the names of any such persons he said that he had heard that Jim Watson had been so engaged, but he did not know whether Mr. Watson was still in that line of employment or not.

Pressed for other names he mentioned former Senator Dubois of Idaho, former Senator Butler of South Carolina, former Senator Dick of Ohio and former Representative Litteauer of New York. All of them will be subpoenaed.

The Perfect Construction of a Buggy Depends on the Small Details

That is why our buggies are the ones that give long road service. Every small detail is looked after. There is not a screw or a bolt left out that would add strength to any part. No pains or material spared to make these buggies the best that can be built. Look at one of them and you will see that it is braced in every place that would give it added strength. Every place that is in the habit of breaking on other vehicles is re-enforced on the buggies we sell and there is just as much difference between a vehicle we sell and the other kind you see as there is between a tailor-made suit of clothes and a cheap manufactured one, because every buggy we sell is built to our own special specifications and that is how we get the road service. By experience we have learned where to re-enforce a buggy to make it wear. If you want a buggy that is built right, looks right, and is right in every detail of construction, we want your business.

FIRST STEP IS STOP CHOLERA

Reduce Loss From This Source And Number of Hogs Produced Can be Increased Materially.

THE ADVICE OF AN EXPERT

Indiana Stands Second in Respect to Number of Hogs Kept For a Given Area.

"The average farm in Indiana," says Prof. W. W. Smith of the animal husbandry department, Purdue university, "comprises a little less than 100 acres on which are kept 22 heads of hogs, including pigs. The question is, How can we increase the number of hogs produced on the average farm? At present, Indiana stands second in respect to the number of hogs kept for a given area. Iowa grows one hog for every 3.6 acres of farm land, Indiana one for every 4.4 acres, Illinois one for each 5.3 acres, and Missouri one for every 5.9 acres.

"The first, and I believe the most important step, to take in increasing the number of hogs is to reduce the loss from cholera. In 1911, 477,000 hogs died of cholera, worth approximately 2½ million dollars to cover the loss due to the premature marketing of pigs and brood sows caused by cholera and cholera scares.

It was shown then how the loss from diseases of all kinds could be greatly reduced. Measures recommended were, first, more careful sanitary methods, second, more range and exercises for the breeding stock and pigs, third, by growing more forage crops for summer and fall grazing, fourth, by feeding more balanced rations, and fifth, the prompt use of the Dorset-Niles Hog Cholera Serum, and the vaccination of the breeding herd by the simultaneous method.

"The second general method of increasing production, and one over which the breeder has direct control, is to increase the productivity of each sow in the breeding herd. The importance of every individual member of the herd being a regular and prolific breeder, I believe, is usually not appreciated.

"If she raises but three pigs it means that they are costing 5 dollars each. If instead of 3 she raises 5, the initial cost is reduced to 3 dollars per head. If she is a very prolific sow she may raise 10 in which case the debt represented by each pig is only a dollar and a half. A saving of 3 dollars in the cost of a 300 pound market pig means a reduction of just one cent per pound in the cost of his production. Without increasing the number of brood sows in the state by a single individual, I am convinced that the number of pigs produced and raised can be increased one half.

"This can be done by selecting the gilts for breeding purposes from the large litters. 'Like produces like' inside of wide limits, and the pigs from the large litter almost invariably prove the most regular and prolific breeders. In the second place, the size of the litter can be increased by keeping the mature brood sows is more reliable as a breeder than a gilt. She raises large litters, more even litters, and has more milk for her pigs. The maximum number of pigs in the litter will be produced and ripened at this time, which is, to a large extent, determined by the health and vigor of the sow.

"The importance of plenty of exercise during the winter, a medium condition of flesh, and the feeding of balanced rations was emphasized to bring to a strong, lively maturity the young pigs in embryo.

"Lastly, a large number of pigs in the litter is not determined by the breed, family or strain. Every breed has its prolific sows and its shy breeders. The prolificacy of the herd will be determined by the individual sows and the care and judgment exercised on their management."

YOSHIHITO, YOUNG EMPEROR OF JAPAN, ALWAYS MODERN

His Palace, Built In 1906, Is European Rather Than of the Far East.

His Health In Childhood Was Not Good, but He Improved It by Outdoor Life.

THE recent news of the serious illness of Yoshihito, emperor of Japan, was a surprise not only to the western world, but to the inhabitants of the mikado's own realm.

Not until his condition became so grave that nearly a dozen of the court physicians were in attendance did the public, even the citizens of Tokyo, know the mikado was indisposed. Their first knowledge of the emperor's illness was conveyed by an official bulletin.

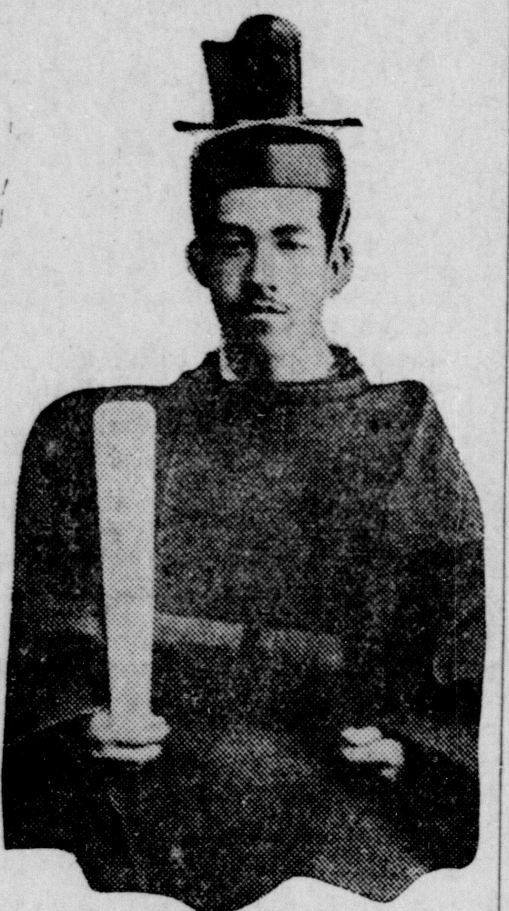

The bulletin, signed by eight of the court physicians, was in these terms: "The emperor, who had been suffering from a slight cold, developed today inflammation of the lungs. We do not consider his condition justifies anxiety, but his temperature is high."

This announcement came as a great shock to the loyal inhabitants of the capital, who had known only that his majesty caught a slight cold while attending a military review at Aoyama parade ground May 18.

All of the papers of Tokyo issued extras chronicling the news of his majesty's illness, and great depression was visible everywhere.

The news created the greatest consternation in view of the great questions of state soon to be disposed of, especially the attitude Japan is to take toward the United States in regard to the California alien land law trouble.

"What if the emperor should die?" was the exclamation of officials at Tokyo, according to cablegrams, on learning that the mikado had inflammation of the lungs and was in a critical condition.

YOSHIHITO IN ROBES OF STATE.

The officials knew that the emperor had been frail from infancy and that any serious illness might end his life.

Lungs Always Weak.

While Yoshihito was still a child the court physicians observed that his lungs were weak, and while he was still the crown prince came many reports to the effect that he might not live to occupy the throne.

Yoshihito's accession to the throne of Japan took place July 20, 1912, but the formal coronation ceremonies were postponed until the official term of court mourning for the Emperor Mutsuhito should end, late in 1913.

Yoshihito Harunomiya, the one hundred and twenty-third male successor to the imperial throne of Japan, was born Aug. 31, 1879. On his eighth birthday he was nominated heir apparent, being the third son of the Princess Yanigawara, one of the eight princesses of noble blood who became members of the household of Mutsuhito when it was seen that no heir was to be expected of Princess Haruko, Mutsuhito's wife and empress.

The two elder brothers of Yoshihito died soon after birth.

On being nominated heir apparent Yoshihito received the decoration of the Grand Order of Merit and a commission as a colonel in the Imperial Royal guards. His education was secured at the school for members of the imperial family at Tokyo and comprised modern training as well as that of the old Japanese studies, including English, French and German.

In 1900 he married Princess Sada, his cousin, a daughter of Prince Kujo. Her family is one of the oldest in the empire and is easily traced back to 650 A. D.

The first of the imperial couple's three children—the Princes Michi, Atsu and Teru—was the first son to have been born either to an empress or a crown princess of Japan in many generations.

Upon being elevated to the throne the Emperor Yoshihito began upsetting traditions and breaking precedents with a view to making Japan modern in every possible sense of the word.

The Emperor Mutsuhito lived much in seclusion. He passed the first sixteen years of life unseen by any foreigner, unseen by any but his personal attendants, who were of his family.

In conference even with the greatest of those who served him his face was never shown, for he sat hidden within a canopy on the low throne platform from which his orders came. Till sixteen years of age he had never walked, and the art of walking was with him a stiff and harsh practice to the end.

It must not be inferred, however, that Japan's progress was slow during the reign of Mutsuhito. In fact, it will be recalled that the opposite was the case.

The occidental influence was everywhere seen, and a great era of change came upon the empire.

A Democratic Prince.

Yoshihito's life in its earliest years reflected the changed condition of Japan. He was brought up democratically and attended school in the College of Peers, which is intended for the education of princes and nobles, but which is open to all.

Here he worked with the rest, possessing no privileges unpossessed by the most obscure and with a punctuality insisted upon from even him, the descendant of the gods.

In this way came the comparative development of his social instincts and his preference for talking directly with his company than through the august intermediary of court officialdom.

Later, however, he came under the care of a tutor, General Oku, who was assisted by a Mr. Adachi, who seems to have been linguistically inclined.

From General Oku he also studied military tactics and early proved that in Japan royalty is something of a talisman. At thirteen he was a lieutenant, at sixteen colonel of the army.

In these early years from our western viewpoint he lived a life of remarkable independence of parental control. He occupied, almost from infancy, a palace of his own—not, however, distant from the emperor's and within that park which could comfortably accommodate the Vatican and Central park and be sublimely unconscious of the assimilation.

This, under the charge of a chamberlain and three assistants and at a yearly expense of 50,000 yen, was his home throughout his years of schooling and early manhood, and it contained everything that even a crown prince of Japan should have.

It came perilously near the luxuries offered by any ocean liner. The small and weakly prince had his gymnasium, his bowling alley, his tennis and archery courts, his stables, his riding pavilion, his fishing ponds.

And these developed in him an outdoor taste which gave him, if not rugged, at least normal health. Here his youth was spent in the society mostly of royal relatives—the Japanese examples of his sisters and his cousins and his aunts.

In the seclusion of his palace also Yoshihito developed a keen attachment for versification, which—even in modern Japan—is deemed one of the most important accomplishments in court circles, writing both in Japanese and Chinese, the last activity corresponding with that Latin verse which it was the joy of English scholars in other times to compose.

A Modern Palace.

In 1906, when Yoshihito's three story palace was built at a cost of $300,000, it was European rather than Japanese in character. It was modern both in design and in equipment.

A strange contrast is afforded by the Imperial palace, where Mutsuhito lived. Here the note is Japanese, incongruously blended with the mechanical devices of the occident, long and low as its labyrinths of buildings, and it is chiefly remarkable for its covered passages and its covered courts.

The architecture is of the ancient Japanese style, with high roofs at sharp angles and heavy gray tiles. No whisper of the European speaks there. Inside are walls of plate glass and lacquer, which, rolled aside, open up vistas of tremendous rooms.

Generally here visitors are impressed with the triumph of Japanese simplicity which characterizes it, though, strangely enough, the imperial apartments are furnished with French rosewood furniture and rugs in the European style. Mutsuhito invariably ate at table and with those ever widening influences, knives and forks.

Throughout the palace, too, one finds, even in a medieval environment, electric lights, in the mystic covered court yards, in the fascinating connecting passages which go up and down and, necessarily, in the very Frenchy modern dining room itself.

But in the emperor's suit, in the midst of the many indications of western ways, in smoking rooms, libraries, billiard rooms, dressing rooms, stands one incongruity which seems insensibly to creep into the blended civilization of the Japanese.

It is the imperial bedroom, plain to barrenness in its Japanese style, unventilated, dark, windowless and surrounded on every side by the rooms of the emperor's personal bodyguard. It is indeed in the heart of the palace

FAMOUS SHIPS TO BE TARGETS

Indiana and Massachusetts Too Old For Service.

IN SPANISH-AMERICAN WAR.

Both Have Fighting Records, but the Development of Warship Building Has Left Them Far Behind the Times—Several Other Big Vessels Are Almost Obsolete.

The twenty-year-old battleships Indiana and Massachusetts, sister ships, that cost more than $3,000,000 apiece and are now at the Philadelphia navy yard, are to be used as targets for the modern Dreadnoughts of the navy, according to information obtained at Washington.

When they have fulfilled their last duty to the navy they will be sold as scrap. The vessels are practically obsolete now.

The Indiana was in the battle of Santiago. During the tense half hour when Cervera and his ships were trying to escape the Indiana played an honorable part. She was commanded by Captain Henry C. Taylor.

The Massachusetts was at Guantamano when the fight started.

Development of warship building has left the Indiana and the Massachusetts far behind. The Massachusetts and Indiana were built at Cramps' shipyard and were launched in 1893. They are 348 feet in length, with 69 feet 3 inches beam and 10,288 tons displacement.

Heavy Armament.

Their armament consists of four thirteen-inch guns, eight eight-inch guns and sixteen guns under four inches. Each vessel cost $3,063,333.

Modern battleships have a speed of twenty-one knots, a displacement of 27,500 tons, and their armament consists of ten fourteen-inch guns, each fifty feet long; twenty five-inch guns and other smaller weapons. The new vessels can place a shot accurately far beyond the guns of the batteries of the Indiana and Massachusetts.

Furthermore, as previously stated the Massachusetts and Indiana have been in service twenty years. The navy department grants a war vessel only fifteen years of life.

The old ships, now intended for targets, are at present part of the reserve fleet at League Island. According to Captain Grant, commandant of the Philadelphia navy yard, there are other vessels there as obsolete as these and may share the fate of the Indiana and Massachusetts.

"The best use the government could make of the Massachusetts and the Indiana is to take them out to Chesapeake bay and use them as targets for our modern long distance guns," said the captain.

Not Modern Now.

"They are slow in speed and way behind the standards of modern war vessels in every respect. Modern guns are fifty feet long, ten feet longer than the largest guns of these two battleships.

"That means the muzzle velocity of the modern guns is immensely greater, and their accuracy and power far outclasses those of the older type of vessels.

"The Missouri and Alabama will soon be as obsolete as the Massachusetts and Indiana and will very soon be consigned to the target service or the junk heap. We have here in the reserved fleet the Kentucky, Mississippi, Wisconsin, Missouri, Alabama, Kearsarge, Iowa, Ohio, Brooklyn, Columbia, Minneapolis and the torpedo boat destroyer Worden. The Kentucky and Kearsarge will soon be useless."

MOORE STILL ON PAY ROLL.

Ousted Weather Chief Has Drawn a Pension Since 1890.

Although Professor Willis L. Moore did not succeed in annexing a $12,000 a year cabinet office and lost his job as chief of the weather bureau at $6,000 a year as the result of his campaign for promotion, he is still on Uncle Sam's payroll.

Professor Moore is a regular pensioner. He draws $8 a month from the United States government and has done so since 1890. Even the officials of the pension office could not be convinced of this until they delved into the records and found a document showing that the ousted weather authority had been placed on the pension list on Sept. 25, 1890.

Professor Moore's army service was in the signal corps, which had charge of the weather service before the department of agriculture was created, in 1880, and lasted from April 21, 1876, to Oct. 2, 1883. He was stationed at Chicago, Albany and several other points. The pension of $8 is based on physical disability resulting from "catarrhal fever, nervous exhaustion and indigestion," according to the records.

An Unusual Will.

An eccentric Boston woman's will cuts off her relatives from any participation in her $30,000 fortune and leaves the entire estate to be used in caring for her two pet cats.

Wealth Was Fatal.

A saloon keeper fell from a launch on the Ohio river and was drowned because he was weighted down with $150 in silver, his Saturday night receipts.

MILLION HINGES ON WATER MARK

Attempt to Show That Will Is a Forgery.

QUESTION OF DATE INVOLVED

The Will of Mrs. Caroline Cloth of Shelby County, Tennessee, Which Has Been Admitted to Probate Disposing of a Million Dollar Estate, Said to Have Been Written on Paper of Two Recent Watermark.

New York, June 10.—Attorney Ewing of Tennessee will walk into the office of the Remington Typewriter company some time tomorrow, ask for Archie Butler, take out from his inner breast pocket a worn fold of paper and say:

"Here is the original of Mrs. Caroline Cloth's will. Just look at that watermark and tell me if the will's a forgery. The disposition of $1,000,000 depends on your answer."

Mr. Butler, who has handled typewriter paper and supplies for years, expects to be able to make affidavit that the paper on which the will is written was not put on the market until two years after the date of the will. If he does so there may be an indictment or two for forgery down in Shelby county, Tennessee.

"W. S. and B. Regent Linen, made in U. S. A.," is given as the mark wrought in the sheets on which Mrs. Cloth's will—known as the Clarendon will—is written. The will is dated in 1898. But Mr. Butler says the Remington Typewriter company, Wyckoff, Seaman and Benedict, "W. S. and B.," did not market paper so stamped until 1900.

The Clarendon will had been thought to be valid until the question of watermark was looked into. It had even been admitted to probate. Mrs. Cloth's only heirs, Dr. John M. Shaller and his sister, of Denver, and half a dozen cousins in Rhenish, Bavaria, had conceded the validity of the will and withdrawn a contest they had filed.

Everything pointed to clear sailing for F. Bruce Garrett of Memphis, who would inherit $250,000 under the document, but Miles S. Buckingham, business agent of the strange woman who starved to make a million, was not satisfied. He wrote to the Remington company about the watermark, got the answer that the paper used must have been got later than 1898, and sent Coruthers Ewing, his lawyer, north with the will in his pocket.

At first there seemed to be no kin, and the state of Tennessee sought to escheat the $1,000,000 she left. Under the law it would have gone to the public schools. Then Dr. Shaller and his sister were found in Denver and a search in Europe discovered the half dozen cousins there. But before steps could be taken to divide the fortune the Clarendon will came to light.

Nobody knows just why it should be called that. It was first found on Aug. 6 in an old trunk in an attic on a farm on the outskirts of the city. The man who found the will after three searches for it was F. Bruce Garrett, son of J. A. Garrett, one of the most honored and respected men in Shelby county. His farm had been sold when young Garrett went there to hunt for the will.

This will made Garrett heir to $250,000, a quarter of the estate. After finding the will Bruce Garrett said that Mrs. Cloth had taken a great liking to him in boyhood and had wanted to adopt him, but he had refused to live in her home. His father afterward told him, he said, that Mrs. Cloth had provided for him in her will.

One of the witnesses to this will was the man who had bought the Garrett farm. The other was a dentist in Memphis. He was dead. His son made affidavit that the signature was his father's.

Governor Sulzer Insists on His Right to Appoint Mitchell.

Albany, N. Y., June 10.—The appellate division of the supreme court, in an extraordinary session ordered by Governor Sulzer, upheld the contention of Attorney General Carmody that the governor exceeded his authority when he appointed John Mitchell as state labor commissioner. Application will be made to the court of appeals to hear the appeal so a decision can be given by that court before it takes its summer recess on June 20. Arguments on the appeal probably will be heard by the court of appeals the latter part of this week.

Chief Engineer of Panama Canal Promises Its Early Completion.

CANAL ALMOST READY FOR TRIAL OPENING

First Vessel May Go Through October 15, Next.

New York, June 10.—The chief engineer of the Panama canal, Colonel George W. Goethals, has arrived here enroute to Washington to confer with the president in regard to the organization of an operating force for the canal and the future policy of the Panama railroad, which is owned by the government. Incidentally he will tell the president when the first ship will be sent through, and perhaps will let him know how long it will be before a battleship can be sent by way of the great ditch to the Pacific.

After Colonel Goethals landed he submitted himself to the reporters, who wanted to know if the recent landslides would materially interfere with the work on the canal. The colonel made light of the slides and said: "The canal will be open without fail on Jan. 1, 1915. If water is allowed in earlier than that, and—here the colonel smiled knowingly—"I understand it will be, we may put a vessel through on Oct. 15, this year."

Asked to be more specific, the colonel said that one of the boats of the commission, of which he is chairman, would be sent through to the Pacific. If water was started into the canal on July 1 there would be enough in the basin by July 31 to float a battleship; that is, there would be thirty-five feet.

"In case of emergency could you get a battleship through before October?" The colonel smiled and slowly answered: "That depends on how grave the emergency is."

He Took It to Heart.

South Bend, Ind., June 10.—"Here's to my wife and children." With these words George Estlow, aged thirty-nine, put a bottle to his lips at his home and swallowed two ounces of poison. He died before he could be taken to the hospital. Several months ago Estlow was divorced from his wife. He had hopes of a reconciliation, but a few days ago he received word that his wife had married another man.

Boy Run Over by Auto.

Princeton, Ind., June 10.—Samuel Greek, fourteen years old, was fatally injured when run over by an automobile driven by Alva Levi. Greek had jumped from a wagon and was hurrying across the street when the accident occurred. The driver applied the brakes, but could not stop the car in time.

white-top but there is also a heavy crop of hay to compensate for this short-coming and the season of hay-making is close at hand when it will be one of the busy and bustling times for the farmer.

Among the other crops which is looked forward to by all is that of the fruit and there is every indication that it will be plentiful. Apples, pears, peaches, plums, cherries and berries are all progressing nicely and the housewife is preparing even now for the canning season, for strawberries and cherries are just now ready to begin to use.

The cherry crop is bountiful and it is reported that they are of excellent quality this year and when the canning begins it will be one long summer burden to prepare all these fruits for the time when winter snows are blowing.

But think of those fine, juicy pies that will stock the larder! Even the thought of it fully compensates for the hard work of picking, preparing and preserving and if all lend a hand in the preparation, mother will appreciate it immensely and the lender will receive his reward in the goodies that fill the table later on in the year.

FUNERAL TODAY.

The funeral services of Lee Hallis, age forty-three, who died Sunday at his home in Clarksburg of pneumonia, were held at the home this morning at nine-thirty o'clock, with the Rev. M. Campbell of Kingston officiating. Burial was made in South Park cemetery. He is survived by a widow and six children and lived on the Ed Fee farm. Mr. Hollis only recently moved to Clarksburg.

Word has been received here that a boy was born Sunday morning to the wife of George Nichols of Zanesville, Ohio. Mrs. Nichols was formerly Miss Ethel Amos.

STRINGS OUT FOR TWO NEW PLAYERS

Local Management is Determined to Have a Winner or Quit the Game at Shelbyville Sunday.

AT SHELBYVILLE SUNDAY

The Rushville team will play the Shelbyville Reserves at Shelbyville Sunday and it will be a team that can win that faces the Shelbyville aggregation. Manager Walker of the locals is determined to have a winner in the field and since the defeat of Sunday has started a hunt for players. He is determined to have a ball team with class or else call it off and play no more. The game of Sunday showed that something was wrong and Mr. Walker will make an effort to remedy the team. The Shelbyville team is much faster than last year and has high hopes of taking the locals into camp. At least two new faces will be seen in the Rushville lineup. Manager Walker has strings on two fast men and their names will be made known after tomorrow. He will go to Indianapolis tomorrow for a conference with Captain Cook and hopes to sign the two men while there. One of the men is a third baseman and the other is a heavy hitting outfielder. The rest of the team will stand. It is assured that Halterman will be in the game Sunday. Avery will do the pitching and the team is confident of beating Shelbyville. From all indications a large crowd will make the trip with the team to Shelbyville. Shelbyville will play a return game here Sunday, July 6.

WANT TENNIS COURTS FIXED

Country Club Members Would Like to Get Into Action.

Members of the Rushville Gun and Country club, especially those who play tennis, are complaining because the tennis courts have not yet been put in condition for the season. A month of good weather has elapsed but the courts have not been touched. The weeds have taken them and it will require a considerable amount of work to put them in condition for play. The wire netting was swept away and the high posts broken off by the flood, but that repair has been made. A new trap for shooting has been installed, too, but the courts still remain a weed lot.

or Black. The mayor's record was used to bring these facts out. Fritch testified that he had no intentions of selling the liquor that he brought home with him from Connersville and that he received no profit in the transactions.

Mrs. Fritch testified that she gave him the money with which to purchase the beer and that after the trial in the mayor's court the beer had been turned over to her. Charles Lake, Bee Murphy, Russell Florence and Frank Jones all told of giving Fritch the money to purchase the whiskey and their testimony upheld that of Fritch in every detail. Tom Evans was called and told of hearing Murphy tell Fritch to bring him home a quart whiskey.

HAYPITCHERS ARE UNKNOWN QUANTITY

Big Flatrock Makes Bow in Sunday

School League Tomorrow and Anticipation is Keen.

WHAT ARE THEY GOING TO DO?

The baseball team representing the Big Flatrock Christian church will make its initial bow in the Sunday School baseball league at the South Main street ball park tomorrow afternoon, when the Methodists will be the opponents. The game will be called promptly at four-thirty o'clock and will go for seven innings, as will all league games, so that they can be finished by six o'clock.

The Big Flatrock bunch is an unknown quantity in the league. Every other team has been in action and the approximate strength of each is known. It is whispered that the hay-pitchers are terrors with the bat and that the Methodists will have a busy day in the field, but the fact that newcomers are an uncertain quantity makes the anticipation of the game all the keener. The Methodists did not show up very strong at their first appearance, but the process of strengthening has been going on and they will put a much better team in the field. The faces of Will Brann and John Carr may be seen in the line-up.

DICK WILSON HAS THE TRACK RECORD

Rushville Trainer Drives Fastest

Mile on the State Fair Ground

Circle This Season.

MAURICE S. TURNS TRICK

Dick Wilson, the Rushville trainer who has been in California for a few years, but who is putting his string in condition this season at the state fair grounds in Indiana now holds the track record on the state track for the season with the California pacer Maurice S., 2:06, which he stepped in 2:09½. The Hoosier trainer was immensely pleased with the way the pacer negotiated the mile, seemingly having plenty of reserve and acting as though he could have gone a bit faster if Dick had asked him to. After arriving here from the Pacific Coast Maurice S. seemed to be tied up and did not show the extreme brush that had characterized his work in California, and Wilson was naturally a bit anxious as to whether this was due to the shipping or whether he had really lost his speed. The work-out last week proved conclusively that he has the sprinting ability that made him a sensation in the coast races. The pacer is pretty well staked, and it would be a pity if he should not acclimate up to the expectations. This occasionally happens with horses that are shipped across the mountains, but all of the horses that arrived here in several stables from California seem to be in the best of condition.

Easier, Quicker and Better Dusting and Cleaning

Easier, because you do not have to get down on your hands and knees to dust, clean and polish a hardwood floor or the stairs, or move heavy furniture to dust under it. Easier, because you do not have to stand on a chair to dust the molding or the tops of doors or the tops of high furniture. No back-breaking rubbing whatever—simply run over anything lightly and it is entirely free from all germ-laden dust.

Quicker, because you only have to go over the surface once to dust, clean and polish. One operation does it all.

Better, because the O-Cedar Polish gives a high, hard, durable finish, not a gummy, hazy bluish cast.

The mop is heavily padded to protect the furniture, and the handle is 54 inches long. It can be easily cleaned by washing and renewed by pouring a few drops of O-Cedar Polish on the mop.
